MAKE YOUR VOICE HEARD

Democracy works when it works for everyone, but unfortunately because so many young people are not registered to vote their views and concerns are often ignored.

So if you want our politicians to take your views seriously, register to vote and get yourself heard.

And if that wasn't a strong enough reason, remember, by being on the electoral register you get a better credit rating.

Registering to vote is straightforward and it takes just two minutes.

Whether it's lowering tuition fees, a cleaner environment, job and housing opportunities or even staying in or leaving the European Union, your voice will only get heard if you are registered to vote.

HOW TO REGISTER TO VOTE?

First of all, you must register before the deadline – 18 APRIL

You can register online GOV.UK/REGISTER-TO-VOTE

Just follow those few simple steps and make sure you have your NATIONAL INSURANCE number handy.

If you're wondering where you can get your National Insurance number from, well it should be on the letter you got from the HMRC when you turned 16 – your parents might have kept it safe!

But it might also be on your payslip or P60/P45 if you're employed, or your university/college Student Support department might help.

Either way, don't worry, you can fill in the form with all the other details and if you can't find your National Insurance number, just write down that you can't find it.

Someone from your Local Electoral Services will get in touch and ask for some other form of identity, such as a copy of your passport or driving license.

WHO CAN REGISTER TO VOTE?

If you are 16 or older, a British, Commonwealth or EU national, and if you are a UK resident, you can register to vote.

You can also register at two addresses, so if you are a student living away from home then register at your college address and also your home address. With the European Referendum happening on 23 June, when most students will have left college for the summer, registering at home means that you can still have a vote.

HOPE not hate is the UK's leading anti-racist campaigning organisation

We challenge organised hate and intolerance. We mobilise communities to provide a positive antidote to fear and hate.

For the past two years, we've been running Voter Registration drives aimed at vulnerable groups and marginalised sections of our society.

Voter Registration is part of our core mission – when we're denied a voice, disaffection can set in. Participating in the democratic process is an essential way to support and build healthy communities.

If you agree with our mission, then get involved.
